Sam Phanekham joins Wilson & Company

Sam Phanekham has joined Wilson & Company as a Senior Project Manager in Fort Worth, TX.

"Sam's addition adds another dimension of experience to Wilson & Company's diverse railroad expertise," said Andrew Leifheit, Associate Vice President. "Sam's forty-plus years of railroad experience and in-depth knowledge of intermodal facilities will be valuable to our clients, and will allow us to deliver even better services."

Having been with the BNSF Railway Company for more than 40 years, Sam brings a wealth of Class I experience and expertise in equipment management, operations analysis/strategic planning, road/terminal rail operations, intermodal/automotive hub operations and capacity planning, and the overall operations of BNSF. His career has spanned several departments within the BNSF, including design as Project Engineer, Roadmaster, Maintenance Planning, and Intermodal/Automotive. Throughout his career, Sam has developed valuable relationships with BNSF Operations, Marketing, and Engineering Departments, as well as port authorities, governmental agencies, consultants and contractors. He has always focused on achieving the safest, most efficient and economical operation consistent with safety, quality, on time performance, and customer service. Sam is accomplished in overseeing his projects through to completion to ensure quality, goals and budgets are met.

Wilson & Company was founded in 1932 and is a multi-disciplinary engineering, architecture, surveying, mapping, and planning firm employing a staff of 400 throughout its 15 office locations in nine states.
